Invitation to Nobel Prize Round Table

on Thursday, April 11th, 2013

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

We hereby sincerely invite you to attend the Nobel Prize Winner in Economics Edmund S. Phelps's speech on the topic of "the main developments in trade, capital flows and exchange rates expected over the future" held by New Huadu Business School (Switzerland).

A major force that continues to weaken the American economy and the rest of the world is the serious slowdown of productivity growth: trade deficit, low interest rates and weak dollar. Fresh fiscal stimuli intended to counteract the weakness aggravated the trade deficit and lifted the dollar; but they are being removed. A new force to reckon with is the demographic shock: the retirement of the baby boomers is contra dictionary for output supply and puts an impending strain on public finances. Yet another huge force will be the continuing productivity slowdown in Europe. The effect over the rest of the decade will be weak investment and employment, hence large trade deficits and a weak euro. Professor Phelps will share his insights with you on the main developments in trade, capital flows and exchange rates that might be reasonably expected over the future on this occasion.

Date:	April 11th, 2013
Venue:	New Huadu Business School (Switzerland) Schloss Sihlberg, Sihlberg 10, CH-8002 Zurich, Switzerland
